The text was written in 1864 by the Anglican Bishop William Walsham How. There are nearly sixty hymns by Bishop How in common use today. This hymn was written to be used as a processional and originally had a different melody. In 1906, the English Hymnal published it using the tune setting Sine Nomine (without name), by Ralph Vaughan Williams. This hymn tune has been described as "one of the finest hymn tunes of the 20th century."
